NAVIGATING AMONG THE SIGNS

Ensuring that public parking is used in the best possible way.

Paying careful attention to displayed parking restrictions and time limits will save you a lot of time and trouble. In areas where parking regulations are enforced by Stockholm Parkering all parking restrictions and time limits are clearly marked with signs in accordance with Swedish road traffic regulations.

In order to help you we have compiled the following information explaining the most frequently used parking rules and regulations.

This sign indicates that parking in a certain area (zone) is not allowed. In some zones parking may be allowed in designated spaces. These are clearly marked by a sign.

This sign, which is displayed in addition to prohibitory signs, indicates who is responsible for the enforcement of the parking regulations in this area.

This sign marks the end of a zone where parking is not allowed. You will see this sign near the exit of the zone.

This sign indicates that parking is allowed. On weekdays, except for days preceding a Sunday or public holiday, there is a 24 hour time limit. Restrictions concerning time, type of vehicle or type of road user (e.g. disabled people) together with information indicating whether the parking is metered, are displayed by additional signs.

Handicapped parking spaces are reserved for people holding a special permit. All other vehicles may use these spaces only for the loading and unloading of passengers and their luggage.

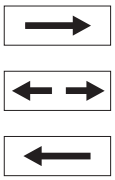
These parking meters must be used weekdays from 8.00 AM to 6.00 PM. On weekdays preceding a Sunday or a public holiday these parking meters must be used from 8.00 AM to 3.00 PM and on Sundays and public holidays they must be used from 8.00 AM to 12.00 AM. At any other time these parking meters are not in use.

The metered parking spaces in this lot are in use 24 hours a day.

The time limit for this parking space is 2 hours. You must use a parking-disc.parking spaces.

In residential areas certain parking lots, or spaces within parking lots, are rented by residents. This sign indicates reserved parking spaces.

Certain parking lots, or spaces within parking lots, are reserved for permit holders. This sign indicates a reserved space.



When the parking space is clearly marked by a sign or marker lines make sure that you are parked in a single designated space. Parking lots are often marked by arrows. The whole vehicle must be inside the parking markers.

This sign, which is displayed in addition to informative signs, indicates who is responsible for the enforcement of the parking regulations in this area
